Author Bio

Jennifer Jones of Arlington, TX is a native of Houston, Texas. She is the mother of three beautiful children whom she adores. Her career began as a correctional officer. She transitioned to an independent security contractor, completing 10 years overseas as a force protection officer, security technician, and mailroom technician. She served in places such as Iraq, Bahrain, Kuwait, and Afghanistan, which fueled her desire to travel the world. Once her contract ended, she returned to the states, obtained her CDL license and began driving trucks.

Although Jennifer's life has had some exciting moments, she has faced numerous heart breaking experiences as well. On a quest in 2018 to heal from her past, Jennifer dug deep within to unlock her sacred vault of pain and love which became her new book of secret memoirs, "Bent But Not Broken". Although not everyone understands her, everyone respects the strides she has taken to change her life for the better and to positively impact the lives of those around her. Jennifer teaches others that though the trials of life may knock you down you do not have to stay there. You must face trials head on in order to rise above your circumstances to make your heart's desires a reality. She does just that on a daily basis.
