

2019 Fort Worth BookFest Author Interview Series

... with Marcia Gray, author of Thomas Gives His Worries to God...

Where is your favorite place to read?

Either curled up in my rocking chair or at night with my grandson laying on his bed taking turns reading his favorite stories.

What is your favorite book to give an adult or a child?

Love you Forever by Robert Munsch.

What books do you return to most often, whether passages or whole?

Anything from John Grisham or Danielle Steel.

What is the last book that had you reading past your bedtime?

5 Presidents by Clint Hill.

Who made reading important to you?

My mother has always been an avid reader and she has passed that interest on to me. I believe in life long learning and reading gives us that opportunity.

Author Bio

Marcia A LaVigne-Gray is a mother and grandmother; she has spent the past few years trying to find her true purpose in life. This has brought her to the realization that many of us have put self-induced limitations on ourselves. Her hope is to reach children at an early age to help them accept and realize who they are and to break through those barriers. At some level, she thinks many of us can relate to this story and have done the same thing Thomas did. We make ourselves a carbon copy of our friends so that we don't stand out rather than being true to who we really are.

Her hope is that this story makes children think twice before they make up a story and if they do find themselves making the wrong choice that they know they can talk to God. Giving their worries to God will take the burden from them so that they can go on and do the right thing the next time. Life is about learning from our experiences both good and bad and accepting them as a learning experience.
